

This architectural elevation drawing illustrates the proposed restoration of the Temple of Mars Ultor in the Forum of Augustus. The drawing shows the reconstructed facade with its three large arches and a row of cypresses in front. A modern glass and steel structure is visible behind the main facade, and a small modern building is on the right.

